better than previous year a lot of new cool things and new menu in carrier did a great job cyanide. Any game that I buy on sale and gives me 200+ hours of enjoyment is good.

I played PCM 2013 a fair bit, so this was an upgrade for me. The changes to being able to follow team members at all parts of a race is a nice improvement. The graphics are generally improved, although some people still go through objects at times.

The only real criticism is that there is little variation to AI tactics. It would be good to seem some more random factors at play.. Pro cycling manager receives a few improvements each year, but also a few setbacks. This year is no exception.

What I dislike:

I miss the old way of setting up the schedule for each rider, and PLEASE bring back music while riding! I understand a lot of players turn it off, but I don't understand why music at the very least cannot be an option. Though, these are minor flaws in my opinion. At times, the breakaways can be almost inhumanely strong, and the peloton waaay too passive. I feel like I have to do all the work in order to ride them back in, the other teams are just passively riding along. The game is still poorly optimized, so you will experience lag even on high end PCs. The water bottle fetching is still a bit of a hassle.

What I like:

I love the new method of setting up trains by dragging and dropping a rider onto another. This was a huge improvement from earlier versions where you had to click "protect" on every rider in the exact order you wanted, and you couldn't switch positions between two because this would ruin the whole setup. This improvement alone is a reason to buy the game this year. Graphics has improved slightly, and the new songs are pretty cool. Quick simulations seem a bit more fair, and winning stages is always a huge rush!

Even though there seems to be a lot of things I dislike, I still recommend this game for cycling enthusiasts. I'm such a huge fan of cycling, so managing my favorite teams in TdF is still a load of fun :). Not enough realistic its a fantasie game where kittel can win a mountain race or sagan can win a tour.

U will get block by ur teamate mabe by random guys or at least by a moto.

And to be all clear lets speak about this +1,2,3,4,5 when a random guy will become chris froome and will win against all leader. This gameplay is not even close as pro cycling 2005 who was one of the better PCM.

We can tell one positive point of this game management is now better than before not fantastic but better.

Please Cyanide play your game before sell it thx.. where can i download the correct santos dour down under tracks

. I've been playing PCM now for about 7 years and is still not tired. Compared to other sports simulators I think this game is great in development year-to-year. There are still some things they can adjust and add, like better simulations and rider maneuvering. However one of my top games ever to play, great to slay some free time. Now with the new fitness plan in Pro Cyclist mode you can be more aware of how your form will be all year, but this still needs more tweaking in showing more correct tiredness.

All-in-all a great game, I recommend this especially to all cycling fans, but also to those who like sport simulation in general.. Love this game. Really enjoy 3D Race and multiplayer now as well as career mode and pro cyclist. As many others have said, I can only recommend this to cycling fans. I'm rating this on the merit of this game specifically and I'm not taking into account the lack of changes/improvements from previous games that I've heard complaints about. This is the first PCM I've bought and I'm really enjoying it. I'd have to give it an ok 6-7/10 though. The gameplay -while fun- is a little janky when it comes to animations. In terms of simulating bike races It's very good. The management aspect is good too but a little lacking in depth. A little more detail into rider progression (of attributes) would be good for example.. I have been a pro cycling manager fan for years now, and after 3 hours of playing i can recommend this game just because they finally updated the multiplayer.

the solo play is pretty much the same as the last 2 or 3 years, just updated some stats that's all.

I like this game.

If you're into any of the tour de france games this gives you much more in depth world to compete in.

in reading the reviews it seems to me that a lot of people just cant accept they aren't very good at the game.

there's a lot of strategy that goes into effectively managing a race, either with a team or an individual rider.. I have not played much of this game as I wish there was a better tutorial. instead you are bombarded with tons of hits with every screen you go to. this will take a lot of learning to get into the game, so it will be too soon to say whether or not this a game worth buying, but I am sure I will find out after more hours with the game.

so keep posted as this review will be altered as the game gets played. Game design

For the fans of hardcore strategy/management sims: Don't play this. This game is flawed in many ways: it provides complexity without depth, it gives you a lot of tasks, but no real agency and mostly it gives graphics and soundbites instead of information. This game cares too much about appearance and not enough about the actual core of a management sim. Which is, given how long this game has been around, not an oversight but a choice.

Game execution

The choices made at the highest level (give the player something nice to look at and have him click on stuff to keep him busy) are reflected in many areas of the game. Examples:

- In management screens: the game bombards you with unimportant messages to keep you busy with inbox management, but players with contracts expiring will leave without giving notice. Unless you've written down his details, you'll never find him again.
- In race: The commentator informs you whenever something happens: someone tries to escape from the peloton, the front group increases the gap to the peloton or the gap decreases. Over and over again. The algorithm is so basic and repetitive, you'll learn to ignore it within a couple of minutes. After a couple of hours, its, pfff.

Enjoyment

It kept me entertained for a couple of hours, but for the most part that was without the game running. The start of these kind of games is great: writing down players stats, checking available races, training, hiring staff, scouting players, talk to sponsors, etc. In this stage you're developing your strategy and making your plan. Then you start playing and it turns out to be a hollow shell.

edit: formatting. It's been a few years since I've really enjoyed a PCM game, but this installment is probably my favorite since PCM13! I haven't had any major bug problems that wasn't quickly patched, and I feel the AI is more balanced than the last few years, both in the races, and in career mode.. The Pro Cycling Manager series... I have played this game for over 3 years now and I think I know one or two things about this game. This game is perfect for the gamer who loves cycling and wants to relax and enjoy their free time.

"Why is Pro Cycling Manager 2017 better than the other one's?"

This year they totally improved the game on aspects like: Graphics, Sound, Gameplay, AI, Management, Rider progress, Sponsors and a lot more cool features. If you would compare 2015 with 2016 you will see no difference, if you compare 2016 with 2017 you just can't deny 2017 is much better.

I gave you my opinion and view about this game. Some of you will not agree with me some will. Overall it does not matter, why? Because it's you who likes a game or not.

For me is the Pro Cycling series one of my favourite games I have ever played and I will definitely recommend it to you.

I give this game an overall rate of: 7.5

So for all the people who are considering to buy this game I can only say one thing. If you love cycling and you are a management/strategy gamer this is your game.. I can't say it's the best game I play, not by a longshot but I find myself playing it quite often none the less. It's sort of a guilty pleasure... But then again, if you like cycling, this is pretty much the only option around.

If you have last year's version, it doesn't really add that much to it to be worth buying, even less at full price... I did it because I had last year's version on CD so wanted it on steam for commodity.

But if you do not own a recent version of the game or want it anyway, do go for it and make sure you stop by the workshop (or the fan site dedicated to the game) to get a proper database... It does make it a lot more enjoyable.

On a side note multiplayer is way better than PCM 2016, but it's still pretty bad. Can't really think of a way to fix it though, so it will have to do I suppose.. Try to start to play the game over 100 times, and crash 100 times, never succeed !!!

even try to send crash report and still failed !!!

What should I DO ??? Love this game!. Are you kidding me? It won't even let me pass the "create a profile". The first time I don't listen to the reviews. And then it totally ❤️❤️❤️❤️ me up. A JOKE.

Update. I found a solution on the internet. I did!! Come on
